UQ's Terms and conditions

HUMBUG members agree to be bound by UQ's term's and conditions. These are:-

- Access by clients to computing and networking facilities owned or operated by The University of Queensland imposes certain responsibilities and obligations and is granted subject to policies and statutes of the University and state and federal laws.
- Access is provided to external clients of UQ for purposes which may include private and business purposes. The services provided are specified in the appropriate service descriptions and/or contractually. Use of services by external clients must be appropriate.
 - ◆ We reserve the right to refuse service to any person or enterprise at our discretion.
 - ◆ UQ will not reimburse customers for technical support or other expenses incurred attempting to connect to our service.
- All clients, including staff, students and external clients of UQ, may make appropriate use of the facilities which should always be legal and ethical, reflect academic honesty and community standards, and show restraint and consideration in the use of shared resources. Clients must demonstrate respect for intellectual property, ownership of data and information, system security mechanisms, and the individuals' right to privacy and to freedom from intimidation, harassment and unwarranted annoyance.
- UQ will not in any circumstance be liable for any incidental or consequential damages of any nature or kind whatsoever incurred in or as a result of your use of this service.
- Compliance with the "appropriate use" conditions includes, but is not limited to:
 - ◆ Do not gain access to systems or services without authorisation from your account. Know in advance if a service offers open access or if you have explicit permission from the owners to use the service. It may be a criminal offence to obtain access to data without permission or to damage, delete, insert or alter data in any way without permission.
 - ◆ Do not harass other clients of online services.
 - ◆ Do not download copyright or illegal material. UQ does not accept responsibility for material fetched or held under your account. By choosing to fetch and/or store it, you accept responsibility for it. Use of any UQ service for fraudulent or criminal activity may be dealt with under University statutes or the appropriate State or Federal legislation.
- UQ strives to cooperate with other systems administrators, network providers, legal authorities of the State and Commonwealth, and the international community to provide a reliable and trustable service. Good systems administration includes regular backups of disk space and the monitoring of system logs reflecting all use of the systems. Whilst we respect your privacy and right to use this service as freely as possible, we reserve the right to monitor user activity and act as deemed appropriate. Such actions may include suspension of access privileges, removal of user data from UQ storage devices, archival of user data as part of the University record or giving access to user data to State or Commonwealth authorities for the purposes of their investigations.

I, _____, have read and agree to be bound by UQ's terms and conditions.
